Your Voice in Northeast Arkansas

What does a bicycle advocacy organization do?

Have you ever been to a city that had incredible facilities for bicycles or was teeming with cyclists and pedestrians?

Chances are, there was an advocacy organization working tirelessly in coordination with community officials and other organizations to make that happen.

NEABC leadership stays up-to-date on the latest best practices in multi-modal transportation planning and policy, and represents the cycling community in the transportation planning process. We keep you up-to-date on important opportunities for our communities to become more bicycle-friendly, as well as publishing important calls to action when an urgent response is needed from you.

We work with officials and staff on all levels of government to change the thought process in regards to bicycles - from being seen as toys to a form of transportation and recreation with important economic, health and environmental impacts.
